THE SLAUGHTER OF TROUT.

A short time ago the CALEDONIAN copied and commented on a statement that the Vermont Fish and Game league were prosecuting individuals in certain parts of the state for violations of the six-inch clause relating to trout. But these prosecutions, so far as have been reported, touch but a small part of the state; and the inefficient manner in which the law is enforced throughout the state as a whole, the utter neglect to pay the least attention to its enforcement in many towns, and the seeming impossibility of securing due respect for it on the part of fishermen—make it more and more evident that that particular clause in the law is a farce which should receive some attention at the hands of the next legislature.

What the CALEDONIAN insisted on some time ago was that such a law ought never to have been put upon the statute book, unless special and effective provision was made at the same time for its enforcement in every town in the state. The Vermont Fish and Game league can do something towards this, but it cannot cover the whole territory, and should not be expected to. That there was no effective provision made for enforcing this law has been proved over and over again. Only the other day the writer was told, on good authority, of a mile-and-a-half strip of brook among the mountains from which over one thousand trout were taken within a recent week—and no pains were taken to measure the fish. This is all wrong, and does not engender confidence in the present legal method of protecting trout.

TWO CONVENTIONS.

Two more political conventions have just been held, and presidential candidates placed in nomination by each. The prohibitionists, in session at Cincinnati, have chosen John C. Bidwell of California as their leader, with J. B. Cranfill of Texas in the second place. The platform adopted declares for the general suppression of the liquor traffic and has, as was to be expected, a decided temperance tint to it. This convention is supposed to represent that portion of the temperance people of the United States who would operate through a party of their own. The fundamental principle involved is an excellent one, but the wisdom of the adoption of the third party method of carrying that principle to a practical and successful issue is not clear to a great majority of the voters. So far as the convention did represent genuine temperance sentiment it is entitled to respect.

At Omaha, on the Fourth of July the convention of the so-called "people's party"—a party conspicuous mainly for its lack of a hold on the people—nominated Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa as its standard bearer. An attempt was made to draw Judge Gresham into the net, but that gentleman wisely declined. The platform of this people's party draws a doleful picture of the country's condition, and calls for free silver, a graduated income tax, government control of the railroad, telegraph and telephone systems, and other things too numerous to mention. The people's party takes on, up to date, the semblance of a farce, and the gathering at Omaha can hardly be looked upon as representing many voters outside of those who made up the convention. Gen. Weaver was prominent as a green-backer in years gone by, and will prove a weak leader.

The terrible disaster connected with the balloon ascension at Boston on the Fourth ought to go far towards setting public opinion against that sort of an exhibition. An ascent is always hazardous, in the very nature of things, and there are safer means of entertaining a crowd.

POLITICAL POINTS.

This comment on our state politics is made by the Boston Journal: "The republicans of Vermont are to be commended for the active manner in which they are preparing themselves for the coming campaign. Already more than half of the county conventions have been held and two-thirds of the state senatorial candidates have been selected. There is nothing like an early possession of the field."

The Manchester Mirror, answering the question, "Who is Stevenson," says he is the chap who, while connected with the postal department under Cleveland, issued a circular to about "50,000 democrats who wanted to be fourth class postmasters, advising them to hang around the republicans who held the offices and get them to say something against Cleveland or his administration and report their words to him, in order that he might have an excuse for deciding that they were offensive partisans and removing them."

The New York Sun has come over to the support of Cleveland. Speaking of crow—here is a fine dish of it.

Col. J. H. Goulding of Rutland has become Col. Fuller's private secretary, and may be further promoted after election—though the Brattleboro Phoenix says the report that he is to be made secretary of civil and military affairs is a trifle premature.

It is stated that J. S. Clarkson will give the Harrison and Reid ticket his enthusiastic support. He could not well do anything else in consistency with his role as a stalwart republican.

Another Vermont woman—Mrs. Nancy S. Foster of Chicago—has come to the front in the matter of generosity, and the new Chicago University is $50,000 richer by her gift. The fund is to afford educational facilities for young women, who are to be admitted to the university on equal terms with young men.

"Harrison and Reid" flags have already been flung to the breeze in many of the smaller towns in the state, and the larger villages should not be far behind in showing their political colors.

"Gen." Stevenson's record, both financial and "war," is being pretty thoroughly shown up, and the display is not likely to make votes for him.

GETTING READY.

The republican state committee and the republican state league officers held a joint meeting at Montpelier on Tuesday night to plan for campaign work.

The league will lead off with a grand rally early in August. Burlington was selected as the place by a vote of 5 to 4, the executive committee of the league deciding the question. The state committee elected as executive committee F. W. Baldwin of Barton, H. S. Peck of Burlington, H. D. Holton of Brattleboro, Olin Merrill of Enosburgh and J. W. Brock of Montpelier. Cols. Fuller and Stranahan were present and took part in the discussions.

The latest scheme in fast railroad-ing is thus hinted at by the American Cultivator: "The coming transit must be electric, and a plan, which is undoubtedly one typical of a gigantic revolution in our mode of travelling, is heralded, for an electric line between Chicago and St. Louis. The track is to follow an air line, and the train is to be run at a speed of 100 miles an hour, making the journey in 2½ hours, as contrasting with the present 8½ hours consumed. The road is to be completed in '93, by the time of the opening of the World's Fair. The cost of the road will be $6,000,000, and the round trip fares placed at $5. The train is to do away with a conductor. The ticket bought in Chicago is surrendered to the agent in St. Louis on leaving the train."

Quick work was made last week with the appointment of Mr. Blaine's successor. At 1.40 p. m. of Wednesday the president sent into the senate the nomination of John W. Foster of Indiana as secretary of state, and by 4.15 Mr. Foster's nomination had been confirmed, his commission signed and his oath of office taken. He will fill the new position admirably.

The New York Tribune fears that the democrats are going to join hands with the people's party in the hope of defeating the republican party in the 12 silver and agricultural states in the West. The election would then be thrown into the house of representatives and ensure the election of ex-President Cleveland.

This, from a Washington dispatch in the Manchester Union of last Friday, deserves a place in the funny column:

"Not only is the presidency within their [the democracy's] grasp, but they have an opportunity of retaining control of the lower house and of capturing the senate. * * * There is a sad lack of harmony in the republican ranks."

William J. Campbell of Illinois, who was elected chairman of the national republican committee, will shortly resign on account of business engagements. This decision was reached after a long consultation with President Harrison. The executive committee will be named before Mr. Campbell resigns.

Yale college men have reason to be proud over their athletic victories last week. Yale beat Harvard in base ball and then won the great four-mile race at New London by 150 yards or so. The Yale freshmen crew also won in the two-mile race against Harvard and Columbia.

The Glorious Fourth was not by any means neglected this year. Celebrations were numerous, and so were accidents. The enthusiasm over the annual jubilee does not abate, and "Young America" may be depended upon to keep it alive.

George D. Johnston of Louisiana will succeed Hugh S. Thompson on the civil service commission. During the war he was a brigadier-general in the Confederate army and for the past 25 years has engaged in educational work.

The anarchists threaten to migrate in a body to the Mormon country. What an elegant combination—dynamite and polygamy! The effect on the latter might prove beneficial, however.

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL NOMINATIONS.

Below we give a list of the senators nominated by the republican party in the several counties of the state.

Addison county—Howard Clark of Lincoln and C. E. Abel of Orwell.
Caledonia county—Albro F. Nichols of St. Johnsbury and B. F. Lincoln of Lyndon.

Chittenden county—D. J. Foster of Burlington, S. A. Brownell of Essex, H. Clay Gleason of Richmond, Essex county—Fred A. Turner of Lunenburg.

Franklin county—A. A. Hall of St. Albans, Olin Merrill of Enosburgh Falls and I. B. Beeman of Fairfax.
Lamoille county—M. S. Dwinell of Wolcott.

Orange county—John H. Watson of Bradford and William H. Dubois of West Randolph.

Rutland county—John A. Mead of Rutland, John G. Pitkin of Fair Haven, Fletcher D. Proctor of Proctor, G. W. Hyde of Sudbury.

Windham county—Kittredge Haskins of Brattleboro and F. P. Ball of Rockingham.

Windsor county—Homer W. Vail of Pomfret, Chas. Amnden of Weathersfield and Fred P. Mather of Chester.

IN WHITE RIVER VALLEY.

Rochester village school district has just adopted the graded school system, and will take rank accordingly among the progressive villages of the state. Surprising as it may seem, the proposal to take this step was vigorously opposed by some of the older settlers, who thought the ways of their fathers was good enough for them; but the young and more enterprising blood prevailed, and the village is likely to reap considerable benefit from this move in a right direction.

The Fall Mountain Paper company of Belows Falls, who have just laid out a large amount of money in clearing White river for log-floating purposes, find themselves still short of water in the branch running up through West Rochester, and will now lay out more cash in the building of large reservoirs from which, at the proper season, the water may be let out in sufficient quantities to hurry the logs down stream. A vast amount of timber is to be cut in that locality the present season, and it looks as though the corporation in question had a big job on hand in converting White river into a practicable highway for logs.

Either the potato bugs are a little lazy thus far this season, or the farmers are taking extra fine care of the plants, for potatoes all along the valley are looking remarkably healthy.

It Stands for Human Rights.

The brightest pages in the history of the republican party are those which tell of its grand successful efforts in behalf of human rights.—[Cleveland Gazette.]

Not a Stout Platform.

The [prohibition] party is stronger than its platform, which condition is a novelty worth mentioning. Our friends will now enter upon their campaign, united as to a main purpose, but as to other issues introduced into their platform, the orators will be either contradictory or silent.—[Boston Traveller.]

RAILROAD NEWS.

Dr. Wm. Seward Webb has been chosen a director of the Boston & Maine, to succeed the late Jas. T. Furber. The other directors were re-elected. It was voted without opposition to issue bonds to an amount not exceeding $2,500,000 for the purpose of refunding the debt and improving all the equipments and the leased lines.

"The new rules are pretty strict," said a Boston and Maine trainman the other day when questioned as to how he liked the radical change which went into effect June 26th; "and they put a good deal of responsibility on to the engineers and conductors. But I guess they are all right—or will be when we get them learned." The new rules are very explicit, and set out every trainman's duty in the fullest detail.

The Massachusetts legislature has enacted an inter-changeable mileage ticket law which goes into effect October 1. It provides for the issuing of 1000-mile tickets, which shall be sold for $20, and shall be good on every railroad in the state. This looks very convenient and useful for the travelling public; but one section of the law provides a loophole of escape for the roads by giving the railroad commissioners the authority to exempt any road from compliance with the law "if in their judgment the public welfare or the financial condition of the road require or demand it."

RECORD OF THE WEEK.

Thursday.

The British ship Taylor destroyed in a collision with a Lloyd steamer en route for Bremen.—The Guarantee Alliance, a New York state insurance concern, alleged to be rotten.—A man and wife suicide together at a Baltimore hotel.—More election riots in Dublin.—Terrible balloon accident reported from London; a balloon, carrying four persons, burst at a height of 100 feet, and one man was killed outright, while the rest were fearfully hurt.—Two men blown to atoms and three seriously hurt by an explosion of dynamite at Shamokin, Pa.—Bidwell nominated for the presidency by the prohibitionists' convention at Cincinnati.

Friday.

Republican state convention in Kansas, and a strong ticket nominated.—The Kansas wheat crop promises to exceed any previous yield.—Quincy, Ill., seriously threatened by a flood.—The town of Mason, Neb., badly damaged by a cyclone.—Fifteen prisoners escape from the Leadville, Col., jail.—Insult offered to the American flag at Warton, Ont.

Saturday.

Terrible wreck on the Wabash road, in Indiana, and five persons killed.—Fifty-one houses destroyed by a storm at Lima, Ohio.

Sunday.

The iron ship Peter Stuart wrecked on the Nova Scotia coast, and 14 persons, including the captain's wife, perish.

Monday.

Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa nominated for the presidency by the people's party, at Omaha.—Aeronaut Rogers and two companions were the victims of a terrible accident at Boston; the balloon collapsed and the three men went into Boston harbor, Rogers and one other being drowned, and the third, a reporter, narrowly escaping death.—Farm buildings were destroyed and the Methodist church narrowly escaped demolition by a tornado at Livermore Falls, Me.—Nine persons hurt during a fire at Worcester.—The English elections result in a tidal wave of liberal sentiment.—Severe electric storm at Springfield, Mass.

Tuesday.

Dastardly attempt to wreck an excursion train in Ireland on which 300 Parnellites were passengers.—Wm. O'Brien, anti-Parnellite orator, dangerously hurt by a stone thrown by a political opponent.—Italian anarchists get long sentences for their May day riots in 1891.—Desperate conflict between Italians and Brazilians at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

A cyclone played havoc at Clayton, Del., leveling houses, orchards, timber, fences and crops.—Thirty buildings burned at Rockland, Mich.—Charles Emery Smith, U.S. minister to Russia, has resigned.

It is announced that Mrs. Brazo Pratt, the Brattleboro singer, who has been associated with Mary Howe, has been engaged as first contralto in the Grand theatre of Bordeaux, France.

PRESS COMMENT.

He is not a "Veteran."

To "Veteran," Barton, Vt.: The earlier reports which described the democratic candidate for vice president as a "veteran" were erroneous. He is a veteran spoolman, but that is all. He never saw service in the army, but he found time to canvass the state of Illinois against Lincoln in 1864 on a platform which declared the war a failure.—[Boston Journal.]

It Would Suit Bill.

A re-introduction of the old style three-cornered hat would be a good thing for Senator Hill. It might help to cover up the bump where he hit the ground when the democratic mule put a mansard roof on its rear elevation, causing him to slip off.—[St. Paul Pioneer Press.]

A Well Fostered Cabinet.

It cannot be recalled that in the entire history of the government there ever was before two cabinet officers of the same name. But the country will not necessarily get the two Fosters mixed.—[Philadelphia Telegraph.]

Every Voter a Jurymen.

It will not be a slangwhangy campaign. But it gives promise of being a vastly better campaign if voters all over the land will leave their torches and their drums alone and set themselves to a decision between the two courses offered them, as jurymen set themselves to decide between plaintiff and defendant in a court of justice.—[Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin.]

Not to any Extent.

It is free trade, flat-footed and defiant, that they offer us. Can a party win under such a banner?—[Pioneer Press.]

No Crow, Thanks!

That horrible dish of crow did not stop at the Gazette office. We don't have to.—[Hardwick Gazette.]
